Imitative of the Fish.

It would probably be found that a smooth surface of iron or steel is about the worst which can give to our ship. For a smooth metal surface has apparently the property of attracting and detaining the particles of water in contact with it, whether by molecular attraction or otherwise. Thereby the water in immediate contact with the vessel's side or bottom is drawn along with her, and its particles communicate their motion to an outer circle of particles, and so on till a vast mass of water is set constantly in motion along with the ship.

This is precisely what we want to avoid, as the essence of the reduction of fluid friction is to slip easily through the water with the least possible disturbance. Herein lies, as I imagine, the great advantage of the surface structure of the fish. It would probably be found by experiment that an exact model of a fish in any ordinary material, as wood, iron, steel, etc., when towed through the water at a given rate, would communicate motion to a straw or light floating object lying near its course, to a far greater extent than would the real fish passing through the water at the same speed. Experiment on this point would be easy, and would be as valuable and suggestive when applied to different materials and surfaces as the former suggested experiments on horse power.

Lucretia O. Putnam,

of Forristad, Mass., was utterly miserable and sick.

Her spine, liver, heart, and brain were all diseased.

The weight of her body caused terrible pains in her back, and it was sometimes several hours before she could dress. This woman's trouble was in her womb, affecting her whole constitution.

She found new life in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

She says: "I am like one raised from the dead. I was sick so long I thought I never could get well."

"The suffocating, gasping attacks and awful bearing-down feeling left me, my appetite returned, and my friends wondered at my improved looks. I believe Mrs. Pinkham's remedies are a sure cure for the misery of our sex."

ARREST THE RIOTERS

FEDERAL MARSHALS AT MOUNT OLIVE TAKE FORTY.

Seventh Regiment Fills Strikers with Fear and They Offer No Resistance to Officers—Guilty Ones Being Apprehended Wherever Found.

Cowed by the Troops.

Among the coal-mining districts which refused to abide by the Columbus agreement was Mount Olive, Ill. Strikers there interfered with the running of coal trains on a road which is in the hands of a receiver, and threatened other lawless acts. Deputies United States marshals from Chicago went down to enforce order, but were routed Saturday in a pitched battle. Governor Altgeld then ordered out the Seventh Regiment, I. N. G., and the troops reached the scene Monday morning. Then the marshals reentered themselves on the strikers. Forty arrests were made and the troops to the charge of the prisoners. It is expected that fully as many more will be apprehended. Almost without exception the miners arrested are non-English speaking Slavs, Hungarians and Germans. The miners were frightened even before the arrival of the boys in blue. In the morning a largely attended meeting had been held and a telegram had been sent to Governor Altgeld asking him to have the troops called home and agreeing to surrender all the prisoners that had been taken from United States Marshal Brinton and his deputies Saturday night. Those who were foremost in the assault upon the marshals were now in a state of panic. They knew enough to be aware of the fact that in interfering with a government official they had committed a grave offense. Deputy Sheriff Hillier has State warrants for more than one hundred additional strikers. He has a large force of deputy sheriffs with him, and he will prosecute the search until he is satisfied that every man in Mount Olive who intimidated train crews or interfered with traffic in any way has been arrested. It is feared that many of the guilty will secretly leave the city.

After the troops arrived and pitched camp in the yard of the Zion Evangelist Church, the real work began. Marshal Brinton had United States warrants for the four men whom he and his deputies had under arrest for a short time on Saturday. He also had an order from Judge W. O. Allen, of the United States District Court at Springfield, to arrest everybody who could be identified as having aided in the rescue of the four prisoners on Saturday evening.

"If you want to make some arrests," said Colonel Colby, "I have some men ready to take care of them. This was addressed to Marshal Brinton and Acting Sheriff Hillier. By this time the old-fashioned board fence around the churchyard bore a wall of humanity. The deputy marshals and deputy sheriffs had been carefully watching the faces of the men along the fence. Among them was an old man with a sneer on his face, and in broken German he was making the commands of the officers of the guard. Two deputy marshals walked out to where he was standing. One got each side of him and he was made a prisoner. He protested against his arrest, but he was hurried back to the west side of the churchyard and placed in care of the guard.

"I'll never forget that fellow," said Marshal Brinton. "For an instant last Saturday evening I was of the opinion that he was the instrument by which I was to be ushered into eternity. In the thick of the fight, when we were trying to retain our prisoners, he shoved a revolver into my face and held it there long enough for me to feel its muzzle grating against my teeth. How it happened I do not know, but one of the deputies managed to knock the gun from his murderous grasp. I am sure that this action saved my life." Rapidly the prisoners were brought in, and as familiar faces appeared the mob of women around the fence crowded at the soldiers in a frenzy. The prisoners are in jail at Springfield and Carlinville.

LIKE HARNESSING OF NIAGARA.

The Des Moines Rapids to Be Made to Work.

Progress has made some stride, and one of the greatest schemes of the century is well started toward realization. The contract for the proposed developments of the Des Moines Rapids water power has been signed and work will soon begin on the canal and power station which is to give to Keokuk and the surrounding country power which shall turn the wheels of industry as they never turned before in that locality.

For more than twenty-five years it has been the dream of engineers and others to harness the immense natural power of the Mississippi River as it flows over the rapids at that point. Many surveys have been made and many plans drawn, but for some reason or other the matter was dropped in every instance until two years ago, when Capt. James Anthony, an able engineer, took the project in charge. Then it began to assume practical form.

The scheme is to confine the water as it flows over the rapids in a wide canal, and use it in the operation of turbine water wheels, which in turn shall operate dynamos for the generation of electrical energy, which is to be transmitted by wires to the surrounding localities. The Illinois shore is to serve as one wall of the canal. Beginning at the mouth of Larry's creek, near the Seneca stone quarries, a wall similar to that of the government canal at this point is to be built. This wall is to be 20,000 feet in length, with an average height of 17 feet, ten 13 feet 4 inches high at the head and 24 feet high at the lower end, the e being a natural fall in the river of 13 feet 4 inches in that distance. At the head the canal is to be 123 feet wide, and the width is to be gradually reduced toward the narrow, where it will be 400 feet. The wall will then parallel the shore for some distance, then the canal will gradually widen to 1,485 feet. At the head of the canal a permanent ice boom of solid masonry 1,812 feet long, 10 feet high, and with an average width of 8 feet, is to be built. It will extend 100 feet beyond the outer wall, and will be 675 feet above the end of the wall.

At the lower end the canal is to be closed with a dam 930 feet long extending out from the shore, 24 feet high, 51 feet at the base and 5 feet at the crest. Extending out from and at an angle of 45 degrees with this dam will be the foundation for the power house, which will be 200 feet long and 80 feet wide. There is to be a capacity of 20 turbine water wheels, each developing 387 horse-power, capable of operating dynamos generating by the direct current system 27,000 electrical horse-power. At each side of the power house will be three flood gates, each 20 feet wide, set between solid masonry piers 28 feet high with a 40-foot base and 10-foot crest. By opening these gates the canal may be emptied in 12 hours. The working head of water will be 11 feet, and to save the capacity of the canal shall the flow in it be cut off of the plant could be operated 36 hours with the supply on hand. It is estimated that this improvement will cost $500,000. It is intended to have the canal completed and in working order by January 1, 1897.

THIS REVOLUTION SUCCEEDED.

The Government of Salvador Overthrown by Rebels.

After a revolution of but a month's duration the government of Salvador has been overthrown and the President, Gen. Carlos Ezeta, has fled the country. The Vice President, Gen. Antonio Ezeta, brother of the President, and the principal general of the government army, was killed about three weeks ago, but his death has been kept secret until now. Had he lived, it is safe to say, the outcome of the revolution would have been different, for up to his death the government had everything its own way, and its enemies could make little progress with the rebellion. The leader of the revolutionists is Gen. Rafael Gutierrez, and it is believed that he will assume the Presidency.

Gen. Ezeta, who is now a fugitive, became President in 1890, when he was successful in overthrowing the Government of Gen. Menendez, whose army bitrary methods had reduced the country to a condition of ferment and excitement. Strong efforts were made to oust Gen. Ezeta from the position he had gained, but without success, and eventually the Salvador Congress met and ratified the choice of the army.

A DARING SCHEME.

To Link Hudson Bay and the Gulf of Mexico.

Representative McCleary, of Minnesota, who is a member of the committee on rivers and canals, has laid the foundation of a scheme to connect the Gulf of Mexico with Hudson bay. Mr. McCleary proposes that the United States and Canada government carry out the project together. His plan is to have the survey made by way of the Minnesota river, whose headwaters and these of the Red River of the North nearly join through Big Stone and Traverse lakes. In high water boats of considerable size have crossed from one lake to the other and it would not require a very large canal to connect the waters of the Red and Minnesota rivers.

While the difficulty of connecting the Red and Minnesota rivers is not great, it is claimed that the rapids in the Winnipeg River have always discouraged the Canadian government from the undertaking. There have been several conventions of citizens of northern Minnesota, North Dakota and Winnipeg looking to the opening of the Winnipeg River, in the hope that they might find a short water outlet to the seaboard. Each of these conventions has been confronted with the objection in the Winnipeg River, but Mr. McCleary thinks that if the United States should take some steps toward opening up a channel on this side of the boundary the Canadian government might be inclined to take some action looking to opening the Winnipeg River.

Y. M. C. A. GOLDEN JUBILEE.

A Great Organization's Fiftieth Birthday Appropriately Celebrated.

The most important international assemblage lately held in either hemisphere was that of the Young Men's Christian Association, which has just closed in London. This coming together celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the parent organization and the golden jubilee was ushered in not only with appropriate ceremonies but by the deliberation of a representative body composed of delegates from the whole world. The United States sent one of the strongest delegations, as a matter of course, but England also was impressively represented, while all the countries of Europe, excepting Turkey, had eminent men to speak for them. Over 1,000 delegates, besides nearly 4,000 visitors, participated.

The event had been anticipated in a series of advance preparations for the past two years. The preliminary (all had been issued since last year by the International Committee now located at Geneva, Switzerland. It is three years since the first steps were taken at Amsterdam, Holland, for the celebration by the appointment of Gustave Tophel, Chairman; Edward Barde, Vice Chairman; Jean Billon, Secretary; Frederick Bonna, Treasurer; and twenty-two other gentlemen, representing every civil and nation. Great as the representation of the United States, it was but typical of every land. The American delegation of over one hundred, headed by John Wanamaker, Rev. Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler, General Secretary Richard S. Moss of the National Committee, Secretary R. M. Burney of New York, Rev. George A. Hall, New York's State Secretary; Luther D. Wishard, Secretary National Committee; G. N. Bierce and E. L. Shuey, representing Ohio Geo. Taylor from California, Rev. Dr. A. H. Scott of Perth, Ont., and others as eminent in the work, went to bespeak this country's aims in the conference.

The place of meeting was Exeter Hall, one of London's most imposing public edifices. The assemblage was in session over a week and its deliberations included measures for the beginning of a crusade that is designed to spread the movement in every country. And not least among its historical features was the presence, as an honored delegate, of the man who founded, fifty years ago, the first Young Men's Christian Association, George Williams. He is now the wealthy head of the house in which he clerked at the time when he began his organizing propaganda in a little room in London with a few of his fellow clerks.

On the opening day of the conference the Committee on Credentials went into session, and the certificates in all languages were duly approved. The following evening at 7 o'clock there was a reception of delegates at Exeter Hall proper, which was decorated with the emblems of all nationalities for the occasion. The official welcome came from 8 to 9 o'clock in the evening, when the venerable George Williams received the tributes and courtesies of all the visitors.

THE "MODEL TOWN."

Deplorable Condition of Affairs at Pullman, Ill.

The condition of affairs in Pullman, Ill., is calling for investigation in all directions. Four thousand men are idle there, having struck against a reduction of wages to the starvation point. The entire town of Pullman is private property. The Pullman Company owns not only the lots and houses, but the streets and alleys, school-house sites and parks. Not a dollar's worth of what, in other towns, is public property has ever passed out of the ownership of Mr. Pullman's corporation. Not an acre in Pullman has been deeded to the public use. The "model town" is not a town. It has no town organization nor officers. It is managed by the private corporation, and it is taxed as a farm or manufacturing plant is taxed. It is a peculiar institution in this respect. The officers of the private corporation can fence up the streets and alleys and evict the school from the school buildings if they shall so determine.

He was a delegate at large to the Democratic National Convention in 1892. He has for several years been looked upon as Breckinridge's s. e. e. s. s. o. r.

THE SCAVENGER.

How the Rag-Picking Tribe Utilize Their Dusty Findings.

"No one has ever spoken of the calling of rag-picking and dust-hunting as a very noble one," said William C. Peabody, of New York, who was at the Southern Hotel, to a St. Louis Globe-Democrat reporter. "At the same time the scavenger performs a most important duty for mankind, and it is to be regretted that he is now becoming very conspicuously absent. Twenty, and even ten years ago the waste paper and rubbish from large stores and factories was exceedingly valuable, and it was a common thing to sell the right to this treasure-trove by tender. Thousands of dollars were paid for these privileges, some of the figures quoted being apparently out of all reason. In order to make money on these contracts it was necessary to sort the rubbish carefully and to remove every fragment.

"The paper and the old cardboard boxes were of great value for paper-making purposes and old rags and fragments of cloth were similarly utilized. Now, however, the old copybook maxim that paper is made of rags is a reminiscence only. For wood pulp, certain varieties of grasses, and other substances are much cheaper and more easily obtained. For these and other reasons there is no longer any money in dust, and it is either dumped in heaps on vacant lots to annoy innocent passers-by and spread germs and bacilli in every direction, or else it is burned by the store or factory owners and a great increase in the amount of smoke emitted thereby caused. I am inclined to think that we underrate the value of the ragpicker and scavenger in his day, and have now to pay the penalty for the injustice."

Those Little Slaves.

The kidneys, separate from the blood, as it passes through them, impurities for which the final medium of liberation from the system is the bladder. When their function is suspended direful results ensue. Among these are dropsy, Bright's disease, diabetes and maladies which terminate in some of these. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters stimulates the kidneys, not as an unmedicated alcoholic stimulant would by inciting them, but by gently impelling them to renewed action and perpetuating their activity and vigor. Thus the blood is once more insured purification and the organs themselves saved from destruction. Nausea, constipation, liver complaint, nervousness, dyspepsia and rheumatism are all thoroughly remedied by the Bitters, which is, moreover, a most thorough appetizer, general tonic and sleep promoter. Use it regularly, not semi-occasionally.

"Is Life Worth Living?"

"The longer I live," said Rev. Sydney Smith, "the more I am convinced that half the unhappiness of the world proceeds from little stoppages, from a duct stopped up, from a vexed duodenum or an agitated pylorus. My friend sups late. He eats some strong soup, then a lobster, then some tart and he dilutes these esculent varieties with wine. The next day I call upon him. He is going to sell his house in London and retire into the country. He is alarmed for his eldest daughter's health. His expenses are hourly increasing, and nothing but a timely resort can save him from ruin. All this is the lobster and when over-excited nature has had time to manage this incumbrance the daughter recovers, the finances are in good order, and every rural idea is effectually excluded from his mind. In the same manner old friendships are destroyed by toasted cheese, and hard and salted meat has led to suicide. Unpleasant feelings of the body inevitably produce corresponding sensations on the mind."

Fifty was the number of eggs first used as an experiment, and after three weeks she was rewarded with forty-six lively young chickens.
